Convocation Ceremonies Impressive

Acting Principle and Chancellor Address Assembly

COLORFUL SCENE

Four Degrees of Doctor of Philosophy Awarded in Chemistry and Physics

The stage on which were arranged the governors and the members of the faculties in their colorful gowns, the artistic scenic background in well blended green and red, the constant procession of black-robed students all combined to lend a picturesque, almost mediaeval aspect to the Fall Convocation held in Moyse Hall yesterday afternoon. From the earnest opening prayer of the Rev. Dr. Smyth, Dean of Theological College, to the final Benediction the whole ceremony ran with a singular smoothness and grace. Dr. C. F. Martin, Dean of Medicine, in the absence of Sir Arthur Currie, delivered the opening address for the session, directing his remarks to the student body in general and the medical faculty in particular. Chancellor Beatty's address treated of the common faculties concerning a college education and the student's training for civic duties.

As early as 3.20 P.M. cars containing parents, friends and members of the faculty began to roll up to the portals of the Arts Building. Promply at 4 P.M. the procession of students, resplendent in their black fur-trimmed gowns and anxious to receive the rewards for their years labor, began to streem down the isle and line up in front of the stage. A few moments later the audience arose as the governors and faculty made their way to the platform, and the ceremonies commenced.

The first degree of the afternoon was awarded to Miss J. E. Bowers of Toronto for Physical Education. Following her came those successful in passing the examinations for the Diploma of Licencate in Music. In order then followed recipients of the degrees of Bachelor of Commerce, Bachelor of Science, (in Arts and Applied Science), Bachelor of Arts, Doctor of Dental Surgery and Doctor of Medicine and Master of Surgery.

Following Chancellor Beatty's remarks the higher degrees were conferred, these being in order Master of Science, Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, (in Psychology, English and Chemistry.) Immediately afterwards the college hymn "Hail Alma Mater" was sung, not in a quicker tempo, as was suggested, but in the old familiar time. Dean Martin then delivered his opening address for the session and the convocation was closed by the playing of "God Save the King" and a Benediction by the Reverend Dr. Smyth.

A complete list of those upon whom were conferred degrees or diplomas is as follows:

Degree of B.A.

Bisson, Margaret Mory, Montreal, Que.
Davis, Henry Weir, Montreal, Que.
Duboyce, Roselyn Maxwell, Halladay, Richmond, Que.

Osler Address For Medicals

Dr. William Grant Macdonald Makes Presentation

A WAY OF LIFE

Second Year Medical Students Recipients of Handsome Gifts

The memory of one of McGill's greatest graduates was honoured in a fitting manner yesterday, when Dr. William Grant Macdonald, presented to each second year student in Medicine a copy of Sir William Osler's "Way of Life" as a Founder's Day gift. In doing this Dr. Macdonald was repeating his kindness of last year when these handsome little books were presented for the first time. These gifts are distributed with the object of commemorating the life and work of the great doctor and also with the hope that the recipients will derive something of permanent value from them.

The books are very neatly turned out. They are bound in red morocco leather and bear the McGill crest stamped in gold on the front. There is a frontispiece photograph of the author and the whole makes a particularly desirable remembrance of one's student days.

The donor, Dr. William Stewart Macdonald, is himself a graduate of McGill. He graduated in Arts in 1885, and took his degree in Medicine three years later. Dr. Macdonald has always shown a great interest in the Medical Faculty in the past, and this interest has culminated in the generous donations of the last two years. The idea in giving the books to the second year students is they may have the use of them while still at college. In this way it is intended that the sound philosophy contained in them shall serve as a guide to them during their senior years.

"The Way of Life" is an address delivered before the students of Yale University on Sunday evening, April 20th, 1913. At this time Sir William Osler stood at the summit of his great career and it is not surprising that he was in constant demand as a speaker. The address which is not very long, contains some of the noblest sentiments and clearest philosophy ever uttered in modern times. Sound advice is given to the student starting his medical career. The part, however, that is stressed particularly is the higher side of medicine, the ideal which is likely to be forgotten in the rapid accumulation of knowledge and in the rush and hurry of practice. He defines his philosophy of living and it stands today as a splendid model for all men of his profession, and in its general principles for any human being.

On the title page of each copy of the address is a presentation slip bearing these words, "To have striven, to have made an effort, to have been true to certain ideals, this alone is worth the struggle." This quotation is taken from one of Sir Willia mOsler's other works, "An Alabama Student".

The suitability and generasity of this presentation have been widely acclaimed. The undergraduates who benefitted have expressed their gratitude in no uncertain terms, and all connected with the university cannot but admire the splendid spirit in which the presentations were made.

ERRATA

It was stated in Friday's Daily that a series of slides on health subjects would be given under the direction of Miss Herriott on Wednesdays and Thursday from two to three.

This is an error. The slides will be given on Tuesdays and Thursdays from two to three.

Regulations For Freshmen Issued Today

Arts, Commerce and Science Cooperate

ONE DOLLAR FEE

Green Caps and Song Books to be Distributed on Monday

Annual event of great importance will come to pass on Monday next with the official opening of the hazing season. The Science and Commerce freshmen will don their insignia of office sometime during Monday morning, while Arts newcomers will have a respite for another day, when they will pay their usual fee of one dollar after English lecture on Tuesday. As is generally the case the Science sophomores are proving by far the greatest sticklers for disciplinary methods. They have produced a code of eleven laws to be observed during rushing season which would do credit to any Roman Senate. The Arts and Commerce freshmen have only four rules to obey and these are not of the same calibre as those enforced by the engineers. These rules will remain in force until Tuesday fortnight, and any infringement of them will be regarded as a very serious offence for which the plea of ignorance will not be accepted. The rules for the different faculties and departments are as follows:

Arts

At 1 p.m. Tuesday, after English 2 green hats and red song books will be given out. The charge of one dollar will be levied for same. The following rules must be observed to the letter from Tuesday for a period of two weeks.

1. Freshmen must wear green hats.
2. Freshmen must walk on the roads.
3. Freshmen must sing when requested.
4. Freshmen must learn all college yells and songs.

Any infringement of the above rules will be severely dealt with. The cooperation of all the sophomores in the university has been obtained so freshmen will do well to be cautious.

Commerce

All Commerce freshmen will abide by the following regulations from Monday, October 8th, to Saturday October 19th.

1. Walk on the road in the college grounds.
2. Wear your green cap and carry song book with you while in the campus.

English Society Admits Women

Opens Membersip to Non-Honours Students

It was announced after an executive meeting of the English Literature Society, that membership in the club will in future be open to any student in the University, male or female, whose application for membership has been approved by the executive. Applications, which may be made to any member of the Executive, will now be received, in order that the vacancies in the list of members may be made up.

According to the constitution of the society, the membership has been limited to thirty, so that any students desiring to attend the meetings of the society are urged to send in their applications as soon as possible or see personally any member of the Executive. The Executive consists of Henry G. Donald, President; David W. Mackenzie, Vice-president, and George V. V. Nicholls, Secretary-treasurer.

In the past it has been the custom practically to limit the membership of the club to male honour's students in the Department of English. However, so many non-honour students and members of the Royal Victoria College have expressed a desire to belong to the society, and so many seem to have thought that unless they were members they would be unwelcome at the meetings, that it has been decided to make a universal extension of the membership.

Under the new proposal all those interested in things literary, whether they be honour students or no, whether men or women, shall upon application be admitted to all the priveleges of the Society.

The English Literature Society, which holds its meetings at intervals of two weeks, was founded at McGill

Recruiting Work Done at Smoker

McGill C.O.T.C. Met Last Night

ADDRESSES GIVEN

Schedule of Work for Coming Year Outlined—Cups Presented

The first military function of the year at McGill took place last night in the Union when the McGill C.O.T.C. held their annual recruiting smoker. The schedule for the coming year was outlined and explained by the commanding officer and company commanders. An address was given by the president of the McGill military committee and former O.C. of the corps, Colonel Thompson. During the evening the various cups, prizes and certificates gained last year were presented. Mr. Will Sims and Mr. Robinson entertained with sleight of hand, anecdotes and songs.

In the opening speech of the evening, Major Jeakins, the O.C. explained the work of the corps in general. He told the recruits that he personally considered the corps to be made of the pick of the university. The O.T.C. is classed as a regular military unity with the one difference that in time of war it could not be called out. The members of the corps rank as officers though within the corps there are the customary divisions of rank. The "A" or "B" certificates which may be gained in the corps enable the holders to hold commissions in any part of the British Empire.

Major Jeakins went on to say that the recruits will parade in the Montreal High School for drill three or four afternoons a week during October. During the term the corps will on Wednesday evenings in the drill hall on Bleury Street. Every cadet will shoot for his classification at the Miniature range there. The best ten are chosen each year to shoot for the Reserve Cup. There is already training in Cavalry, Infantry and Medical work. This year it is planned to start a Signalling Company under the command of Lieut. C. W. Gardner, who during the summer became first class instructor in signalling at Camp Borden.

The Cavalry squadron holds several weekly rides on Mount Royal during the fall. The practical exams for the various branches of the corps are held in February. The theoretical exams are to be in March. Two lectures a week will be given.

In the past many enjoyable weekends have been held at St. Margaret's and St Anne de Bellevue and this year a similar programme is planned. The annual dinner of the corps is held toward the end of the session. Last year a very successful dance was held in the Union by the corps. The cavalry dinner may now be considered an annual function and it is hoped that the other branches will follow suit. The Orderly Room and the Quartermaster's Stores which are already busy are located in the Physical Education Building on University Street. The orders for the Corps are published every week in the Daily and also appear on the various notice boards.

Founder's Day Address Given By Dr. Martin

Sketches Development of University from Origin

NOTED GRADUATES

Chancellor Beatty in Speech Outlines Advantages of College Education

In delivering the Founder's Day address at the Fall Convocation yesterday, Dr. C. F. Martin, Dean of Medicine, in keeping with his subject briefly sketched the history and development of McGill touching on the life of James McGill and the benefits conferred upon it by various public-spirited benefactors who realize the importance of higher education. Chancellor Beatty in his remarks, spoke of the advantages of a college education, the students debt to his college and his training for his duties as a citizen.

After remarking that the assemblage was to do honour to the memory of the founder, Dean Martin said it was well as the university enters upon the 117th year of service to pause, both for reverent retrospect and for consecrated purpose.

"Eminently fitting it is that on this anniversary we take fresh cognizance of our grateful appreciation of high-minded effort which has made McGill University so vital a force in the life of our city and our Dominion."

Dr. Martin referred to the life of the Hon. James McGill, calling attention to his sense of civic patriotism and public spirit in that he took such active interest in all legislation affecting primary and higher education in the province, and in what he did towards founding McGill University.

"That our university has justified the desires and aspirations of its founder is evidenced by the long list of benefactors whose names are linked with his in our love and honor, and whom on this occasion we gratefully recall—John Henry Molson, Lord Strathcona, Lord Mount Stephen Sir William Macdonald, James Douglas, Robert Reford, R. B. Angus, James Cooper, Henry Birks, David Morrice, James Ross, and many other men who had the sagacity to perceive the needs of the institution and to secure for it intellectual and financial resources requisite for the foundation of a strong university. These were men of heroic mould, who

Ice Lecture By Dr. Barnes

"Active and Passive States of Water"

On Thursday, Oct. 11th at five p.m. Dr. Barnes, authority on the science of Ice Engineering, will open the first of the usual Thursday Physics Colloquia for this session in Room 210 of the MacDonald Physics Building. Dr. Barnes has chosen as his subject for this lecture "Active and Passive States of Water", which will be the first of two lectures on this topic.

The lecturer is not merely well known locally but has established an international reputation as one of the most eminent authorities in his subject of the day. Dr. Barnes' experiments in the disintegration of ice by scientific methods and his attempts to lessen the danger to ships in northern waters from icebergs are famous throughout the United States and Canada. Dr. Barnes has also made several valuable suggestions for keeping the St. Lawrence river open to navigation during the winter months by means of thermite.

On a week from Thursday Dr. Barnes will lecture on "The Influence of Light on the Disintegrating of Ice."

R.V.C. 29 Met

The initial class meeting of R.V.C. '29 for this year was held yesterday. Miss Adele Languedoc, retiring president, urged members to pay their black fees and prevent an extra levy having to be enforced. The election of officers for the year took place as follows:

President ..... Elsie Johnson
Vice-President ..... Sally Cox
Secretary-Treasurer .. Gwen Roberts
Sports Manager ..... Agnes Morton
Tennis Manager ..... Isobel Bennet
Basketball Manager .... Jean Snyder
Hockey Manager ..... Aldeth Adams
Poster Manager ..... Mora Sullivan

Colonel Bovey Comments On College Hymn

Having regard to the request made by the higher authorities for the singing of "Hail, Alma Mater" in faster tempo, and the decision given by the Students' Council at a recent meeting, a representative of the Daily interviewed Colonel Bovey yesterday, just before Convocation, who made the following statement.

"The manner of singing Universit songs and the time, is a matter which in my opinion should be regulated by the Students' Society, the wishes of which are expressed by the Students' Council. When however, a song becomes regarded as official, it has always been customary to give the most careful thought and to get the best advice regarding its rendition."

S.C.A. Meeting Is at Rosemere

More Cars Needed to Carry Crowds for Conference

BUSSES CHARTERED

All Day Programme Arranged —Evening Address by C. M. Stewart

Members of the Students' Christian Association will leave early Sunday morning for an all day organization conference at Rosemere, north of Montreal, where plans are to be made for the year's work and consideration is to be given to the function and purpose of the Movement on the Campus.

Two, or perhaps three busses will be chartered to carry the crowd of some one hundred to the scene of the conference. As many private cars as possible are needed in addition to the busses, and any driving cars who are attending the conference and can accommodate others are asked to notify Charles M. Stewart, the Secretary of the S.C.A. in Strathcona Hall by noon on Saturday.

The conference will take place rain or shine. All those coming are requested to bring their lunch, or its equivalent in fruit. The busses will leave Strathcona Hall at nine o'clock in the morning and will be back in the city by ten at night. Supper will be served at Rosemere.

The programme for the day has been carefully arranged by a joint meeting of the S.C.A. Boards which took place on Thursday. Reports from delegates to two summer conferences will be heard. Wendell Macleod, who spent the summer studying student life in Europe and attended the Chartres Conference of the International Students' Service, will give a concise five minute report of the features of the conference which impressed him most. The Elgin House Conference, which lasted for ten days in September just before the college session opened, will be dealt with from different angles by Gwen Roberts and Phil Matthams.

The convenor of each committee will be given the opportunity of setting forth his or her plans for the year. After each of these reports a discussion is expected.

The feature of the conference will be the evening address of Charles M. Stewart, new Secretary of the S.C.A. for McGill. Mr. Stewart was appointed to his present position following the transference of Harry Avison to Winnipeg this summer. Those who have not yet had the opportunity of making his acquaintance will have the opportunity to do so on Sunday.

Sophomores Win Annual Track Meet

Defeat Freshmen by Scant Margin of Eight Points

DREW SHINES

Four First and One Third Won by Latest Freshman Sensation

One of the most bitterly contested competitions in the history of the Freshman-Sophomore track meets took place yesterday afternoon, with the Sophs coming out victors by a scant margin of eight points, having amassed a total of 60 to their opponents 52. Half way through the meet the Sophomores were leading their rivals by a considerable margin but when the freshmen took all three places in the broad jump, and the first two in the 440 yards, and the only place given in the javelin throw, it began to look as though the freshmen might win out. However even this collection of points was not enough to overcome the sophomore's lead, and the second year men came out victors, a thing that has not occurred for several years.

The weather, as has been the case, in the last three or four Fresh-Soph. meets, was not on its best behaviour, and just after the start of the meet a heavy shower came down, which kept up intermittently all through the afternoon. As a result the track was considerably slower than usual, and most of the times made are considered very good under the circumstances. Owing to the heavy nature of the track, the three mile event was omitted from the program. The field events were not affected to the same extent as the track, but the slippery nature of the ground prevented the best results from being obtained.

Among the several stars of the meet, special mention must be made of C. R. Drew, a freshman from Medicine, who entered in five events, took four firsts and a third, for a total of 21 points. Drew's outstanding effort was the 120 yard high hurdles, in which he ran a beautiful race, to equal the Intercollegiate and McGill records of 16[illegible]—5 secs. He was also first in the high jump, the broad jump and the shot-put, and third in the 100 yards. Watch this man Drew. With a few more weeks practice he ought to shatter several records which have been in the Intercollegiate books for several years.

Sir R. Rodd To Speak Here

Famous Diplomat Will Lecture in Moyse Hall

Sir Rennell Rodd, the famous English diplomat and literary figure will lecture in the Moyse Hall on the evening of October 8th, his subject being "The Essence of Poetry". A man of seventy odd years he has seen service as a diplomat in many countries, including Germany, Greece, Italy Abyssinia, Sweden and Norway. Since the war he has twice been a British delegate to the League of Nations. During all his life literary work, research and travel have occupied most of his time.

The Right Honourable Sir James G.C.B., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., M.P. has come to Canada at the invitation of the National Council of Education and will lecture throughout the Dominion this autumn. Sir Rennell was educated at Oxford where he received the most coveted Newdigate Prize. In 1883 by a competitive examination he succeeded to a post in the Diplomatic Service.

From that time to the present his life has been one of unceasing variety. He spent one year in the Foreign Office while Glastone's government was in power and then went to Berlin. Sir Rennell became at the time First Secretary of the British Embassy. At Athens, his next post, Sir Rennell spent a considerable amount of time studing ancient Greek literature and customs and published several books on those subjects. He was next appointed to Rome and Paris until in 1892 he was sent under Lord Dufferin to the East, and eventually became High Commissioner for East Africa. He remained in Egypt for eight years and in 1897 he was sent to King Menelek of Abyssinia on an especially delicate mission, and here demonstrated his diplomatic gifts in sympathetically handling Eastern peoppples. After a short inter-

THE COLLEGE HYMN

"Rah! Rah! Rah! McGill!", shouts the student, telling the wide world that he wears a red sweater, and there ain't none better, and adding something vague but delightful about another keg of beer.

"Collegiate", murmurs a sophisticated world, and passes by.

But, although in scratching the surface of college enthusiasm you find a college yell, digging a little deeper discovers a college hymn, this hymn the student does not sing on all occasions, and at any time. He sings it standing at attention, and he does not wear a hat. The yell is the expression of his enthusiasm, the hymn of his feelings.

All colleges have their college song, but all colleges are not so fortunate as McGill in its possession of a college hymn, a hymn which has been sung on every occasion of moment in its history for many years. When graduates gather together for their reunions, it is "Hail! Alma Mater!", that comes to their minds, and therein do they feel collegiate again.

Singing yesterday at Convocation was deplorable, and one might have deduced anything one pleased from the way in which both "Hail Alma Mater", and "God Save the King" was rendered by the body of students. Happily it is rarely that such a fit of dumbness comes upon us.

Yesterday was nothing upon which to pass judgement, and we can do no more than apologise for the way in which this should-be most impressive part of the ceremonies was treated by the students.

RULES ARE RULES

"Any infractions of these rules will be dealt with quickly and judiciously by the sophomores", is rule nine of the Science list of mandates for the qualcing freshies.

If the sophomores impose a set of laws, they certainly should enforce them, but it is rather a fine point to deal "judiciously" with a freshman who is ascending stairs from a point facing a point at a variation of ninety-five degrees from a straight line drawn parallel to the direction in which he is moving instead of one 180 degrees, as laid down in the rules. However, everything is possible to a sophomore, so we quite expect that we will actually behold the creature fancy has created out of insignificiant freshmen. May they live to enjoy it.

Freshmen in Science will surely have the consilation of believing that when they are through their novitiate period they will be much more firmly entrenched in their rights as undergraduates of McGill than will the other freshmen. Have they not passed the barriers and undergone the rites which their less fortunate brethen of other faculties have not known. It is all a matter of the point of view, and with the proper point of view even initiation can be enjoyable.

We commend the care of the freshmen to their senior brothers with the hope that the true aim of initiation will not be forgotten, that it is an introduction to college life, not only a testing ground for the susceptibilities of the newcomers.

RUGBY STARTS

Intercollegiate rugby gets its start in Kingston to-day when Toronto and Queens meet, and McGill seniors provide their first game of the season when they engage Balmy Beach on home ground.

We cannot let the occasion pass without commenting on the excellent spirit which has been evidence at the Stadium during this preliminary season. Everybody feels on equal terms, and all is going swimmingly.

McGill expects (annual pre-season expectation) to win the title this year, of course, this afternoon should provide an excellent game for the spectators, and an excellent workout for the team against last years champions. We wish them the best of luck.

DR. STEWART'S GIFT

No college can live down its eminent men, and McGill has been enriched with the presence of many such. Among the chief is Sir William Osler, almost a hallowed name among medical men.

It was a mark of much appreciation that Dr. Grant Stewart left when he bequeathed in his will last year an endowment fund to give a copy of one of Sir Williams addresses to each student of second year Medicine.

Dr. Stewart was himself an honoured graduate of the University, and he chose a most attractive way of keeping fresh the memory of his great teacher among generations that had no opportunity of knowing him personably.

LOOK WHO'S HERE

"Where do you come from?", and "Why did you come to McGill?", are two closely connected questions that would discover much if put to each student here.

"Montreal", many would answer, and "Because I live here".

"The ends of the earth", many more would answer to the first question, and "Because I can earn my way through college here". "Because it has a good name". "Because a friend of name". "Because a friend of mine is here", and "because" a lot of other things, would be various answers to the second questions.

So McGill is at home to guests from all parts of the world, she is affiliated with distance, and on easy terms with all races, and harbours people who seek her acquaintance from all motives. Surely broadmindedness and humility should be her lot, and from her gates should go forth understanding.

It is a compliment to the way in which she has fulfilled her function that McGill is spoken of with respect in so many parts of the world. Her graduates are a scattered through of witnesses in near countries and far countries, and the tale they tell, and impression they create is not often anything but good.

New York has an International House, where students of every country club together and line together and get to know each other. They are of those who in the next generation will preserve the peace of the world, aiding in the gigantic task of creating understanding between nations.

McGill is in the position to do much in the same line. Even without effort, the mere fact of students being together and seeing each other does much.

We have been able to welcome in late years a large percentage of Americans within our walls, and have welcomed the compliment by making welcome many of our students in their own colleges. It is not among these people that the publishers of distorted war articles and controversies find their public, the question of who won the war is not their chief worry, but rather the question of how to best win in battles more near at hand and still in the future.

A little understanding goes a long way, and McGill is doing its share. May we all co-operate.

THE ROSEMERE CONFERENCE

Following up their highly successful conference at Elgin House this summer, the Student Christian Association should get off to a good start in their organization conference at Rosemere to-morrow. Plans have apparently been made for a profitable time.

It is rare opportunity that a few of the members had to be present at the big International Conference of L.S.S. in France this summer, an opportunity of meeting students from every country which we envy them. Now is the time, of course, when the obligation t opass on what they have obtained from these associations is that upo nthem, and we hope that they will take every opportunity of doing so.

It is hoped that their experience will be published in the Daily at some near date for the benefit of the students.

College Comment

SOUNDS LIKE A PICK UP JOB

The spectacle of staid, austere College Hill being invaded Sunday night by masked bandits, flourishing blue steel revolvers in a professionally threatening manner, carries with it all the drama of the unexpected.

But what serves as a beautiful example of the New England dignity and background of this quarter is the fact that after making such a brave initial flourish, the daring robbers, with the situation entirely in their control, broke down and fled—leaving an intact New England virtue behind them.

One can vividly picture the situation. The previously tranquil restaurant patrons rising suddenly with napkins clutched in their hands, the gradually growing appreciation that this was not a practical joke but a real invasion of the methods of Chicago into the aristocracy of College Hill, the bravado of the robbers being undermined by a convergence of cold glances and a general raising of eyebrows—all carrying the same message of outraged propriety.

It was the sort of thing that is not done. It was proof that the methods of Chicago's racketeers can never be introduced safely into this section of Providence. The underworld does not posses the requisite moral courage. —Brown Daily Herald.

THINGS WORTH WHILE

Who are we and whence have we come?
I do not care to know.
I'd rather watch this sunset rare
Or listen to the river's murmuring flow.

What good to know the why and whence and where,
If it can live and love
And dream with you this twilight dream,
While one by one the stars come out.

Sweetheart, 'tis only life and love that count,
And these are ours tonight,
So let us love while pale stars shine,
And think no more of whence this earthly flight.

VACANCY

Now the sun is slowly sinking
In a picture-postcard sky,
And I sit here, tritely thinking,
What am I?

Thinking of the endless riddle
Of the living and the dead,
Squashing gnats upon the middle
Of my head.

Erik Barnouw,
The New Student.

MUSICALLY SPEAKING

Robert Schumann, German composer, was stating a basic truth, applicable to all people when he said there were three essentials to make the Germans appreciate men of genius,—first, they must be dead, second, they must be dead a long time, third, they must be dead a long, long, time.—Indiana Daily Student.

WE'RE GLAD TO KNOW THIS

Oxford women students now to speak to their gentlemen friends on the street. This was formerly a great breach of etiquette.

The regulation against talking to men on the street is, of course, manifestly absurd. It is the survival of a custom which was likely a necessity for protection in earlier, rougher days. Now that the need has disappeared, the custom should follow. For now, University men—though there are specimens to the contrary—generally are gentlemen.—S. M. U. Campus.

THIS FREEDOM

President Clarence Cook Little of the University of Michigan has asked that federal prohibition agents be assigned to Ann Arbor to ascertain the truth about the liquor problem there.

"Ever since coming to Michigan I have been conscious of the harm done to the University by rumors of drinking and uncontrolled behavior at fraternity dances and house parties," President Little wrote.

CONCERNING INTELLIGENCE TESTS

Now Columbia comes forward with an open and avowed use of such an examination. The four hundred and fifty men who ordinarily would have been admitted to the freshman class of the Law College were asked to take just such a psychological test, and the results were used to limit further the number of entrants. On this basis a hundred and seventy-five men were refused entrance and the other two hundred and seventy-five admitted. It is too soon to approve or condem the efficiency of this proceedure; only time can tell. But it does seem that although Columbia has played a brave hand in so stepping to the fore, she is placing quite a premium on one examination.—Cornell Daily Sun.

Next Week at Local Theatres

AT THE PRINCESS

With its original New York Cast which played the Republic theatre for six long years, and its excellent production Anne Nichol's famously successful appealing comedy "Abie's Irish Rose" will be presented by the world famous author producer for a return engagement at the Princess Theatre for six days only and two matinees Wednesday and Saturday, commencing Monday evening, October 8th, and unless all signs fail, will be another city added to the long list of records established by this truly remarkable play, which has been the cause of more discussion than any play written since the Bard of Avon first started writing.

"Abie's Irish Rose" is not only brimful of good clean, wholesome comedy, there beiug a hearty laugh in almost every line, but in its unfolding, discloses one of the prettiest little love stories ever told, which in its simplicity is at once winning.

Miss Nichols has written all told seventeen plays, eight of them of which were utilized as starring vehicles for the well known Irish tenor Mr. Fiske O'Hara, who, by the way, will shortly open in one of her plays on Broadway, and who was also responsible for the Chicago run which lasted two years, and who played in one of her plays "Just Married" for one solid year on Broadway. It was however, "Abie's Irish Rose" which placed Miss Nichol's name in the Hall of Fame as having written a play which has established a precedent never before heard of for long runs in such cities as Los Angeles, San Francisco, Cleveland, Pittsburg, Buffalo, Baltimore, Washington, Toronto and here in Montreal, where it played the Orpheum Theatre for ten weeks, and would have remained here ten more weeks had not the theatre been leased to a French company from Paris. The cast which Miss Nichols' will present here includes, Barnard Corcey, Ida Kramer, Phil White, Patricia Queen and others of the New York cast.

AT HIS MAJESTY'S

The Porte St. Martin Theatre Players from Paris will appear in a repertory of three French plays at His Majesty's Theatre. The cast includes such well known French actors as Joube, Germaine Rouer, Joffre, Bourdel, Almette, Boyer and Glenant.

"Chantecler," Edmond Rostand's famous play, will be performed on Monday evening. The play will be repeated Wednesday and Friday evenings and Thursday matinee. "Le Carnaval de l'Amour", a modern comedy by Mere, will be given on Tuesday and Saturday evenings and Wednesday matinee. The third play, Victor Hugo's "Hernani" will be seen on Thursday evening and Saturday matinee.

AT THE ORPHEUM

For their vehicle at the Orpheum Theatre the Orpheum Players have selected a comedy from the pens of Amelie Rives and Gilbert Emery, entitled "Love-in-a-Mist".

The leading figure in the play is a young and pretty girl and who finding herself sought in marriage by two equally attractive young men and unable to decide which of the two she will marry, decided to play off one against the other. This entails a scheme of systematic and effective lying, which, however, compromises her so badly that she cannot go ahead without one or the other of the men discovering her. The climax results from these complications.

AT THE IMPERIAL

One of the feature acts at the Imperial Theatre will be a syncopated novelty offered by Everett Sanderson, composer, assisted by Ethel Nagel, Paul Catrel and Ellen Laine. Will Cressy and Blanche Dayne will appear in "The Man Who Remembered" a comedy sketch. Cortoni, cain manipulator, will perform some of the tricks that have made his noted. Other acts will be Nelson B. Clifford and Miss Marion in "Just Dumb"; "The Land of Clowns" a dance presentation featuring the Evans Brothers and Maxime Henry; Nick F. Gifford and Lee Gresham in songs and burlesque bits; Breen, LaBard and Barry in "Watch Your Step" and Patti Harold and Myrtle Leonard in a song recital.

AT THE PALACE

"Mother Knows Best" the first feature picture with dialogue to play in Canada, will be held over for another week at the Palace Theatre. This course of action has been made necessary by the large crowds attending the first week's showing. The picture was adapted from the story by Edna Ferber and tells of a mother's domination over her daughter who rises to fame on the vaudeville stage. The principal roles are enacted by Louise Dresser, Madge Bellamy and Barry Norton. In the course of the picture Miss Bellamy is heard in song imitations of Harry Lauder, Al Jolson and Anna Held. The talking sequences in the picture make it doubly interesting. The programme also includes several attractive shorts, among these being "The Picnic" and "In a Music Shoppe" There is also a Fox movietone newsreel.

AT THE CAPITOL

Beginning today the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre will be "Two Lovers", co-starring Ronald Colmon and Vilma Banky. The picture is billed as the last vehicle in which these two actors will appear together. It was adapated from the Baroness Orczy novel "Leatherface" and tells a highly romantic story of a mysterious man who saves Flanders from falling into the hands of the Spaniards. The picture was directed by Fred Niblo, and the cast includes Noah Beery, Nigel de Brulier, Virginia Bradford and Paul Lukas. Appearing with the Capitolians on the stage will be Princess White Cloud, entertainer; the Mann Sisters, dancers; Little Caruso, tenor; Clara Vincent, soprano, and Paul Ward, baritone. Buddy Payne will offer special selections on the organ.

AT GAYETY THEATRE

The burlesque attraction at the Gayety Theatre will be "Puss Puss" The featured players are Jim Bennett, Ruth Darling and Flora Dearth. Many novelties are promised in this production. There is also a large singing and dancing chorus.

He Was Attached to His Belongings

I would like to relate an experience of mine with a farmer friend in the Laurentian Mountains which struck me as rather amusing.

It was whilst on a canoe trip that we uncountered a ten mile portage through the forest to the next lake and this farmer helped us carry our duffle. In the operation he became very heated and perspired profusely, and our advice to him was to take a hot bath and get into dry clothes. His remark, in dead earnest, went like this "Ce n'est pas la saison pour prendre un bain," meaning it is not the time of year for a bath. Well! would you believe it, the next thing we heard was that he had taken ill with double pneumonia and required an operation to relieve his congested lungs. On his recovery, I asked him how the operation went, and his reply was—"Wal—it was not hard after they undressed me, sure, but it took a scolpel—un couteau, comprends?—and alcohol pour oter mes clothes. For you understan' me, I had my clothes on for fiv' year."

It is more of an illustration of how attached a person will become to his belongings in the far, cold, lonely wastes of the Northland.

My Holiday Is Over

My annual holiday is over,
The good time has come and gone.
ries,
But I have sweet and happy memo-
To live and to feed upon
Although I return to work without a cent
I am a real mental millionaire
And do not sincerely repent.

My "fourteen days", holiday is over
The work of the session, and Social engagements have begun
If I retire to bed early in the morning,
To the college I may have to run,
Should jolly nights bring doleful days,
May holiday scenes shed mental rays.

A ray of inspiration for knowledge,
For the number of subjects are great Conquest over new thought always elate.
Should my progress be rather slow
And my fountain of wisdom don't overflow,
A noble struggle prevents a swelled
head
Men with big heads, although living, are dead.

Dead to the power of tact, and civility
Blind to the honour of true humility
Dead to the spirit of helpfulness
Satisfied with vain conceit and selfishness
Strutting their brief hour on the stage
In various moods, often in a rage,
And then their little candle goes out.

Yes, my holiday is over, but life,
And the heavens are the same,
Although there be clouds, sunshine,
snow or rain
Look out on the great wide horizons
Fix perspectives upon Exams, of the heavenlies,
Work without haste, and without ease
And garrison your soul with peace.

College Rugby Opens Today At Limestone City

Queen's and Varsity Clash in First Scheduled Game

QUEEN'S FAVOURED

Kingston, October 5.—The 26th season of the Canadian Intercollegiate Rugby Union will open here tomorrow afternoon when Queen's and Toronto Varsity twelves take the field at the Richardson Memorial stadium. The fight for the ancient silver much that has been going on for twenty-five years will be continued today between the Tri-colour and the Blue, while next week, McGill enters the ring against the Queen City squad at Toronto.

A check up on the strength on paper of all three squads indicates that the scramble for the title will be as tight as ever before, but McGill and Varsity, especially the former, have come ahead so rapidly in the past week or two that a close and even race is looked for.

Queen's will take the field today with three of their regulars badly crippled, so badly injured, in fact that they may not be able to figure at all. And the three injured players are ones whom Queen's can ill afford to lose. Captain Bubs Britton, spark of the tri-colour attack, has a knee that will probably rebel on him on the first tackle if he is so rash as to go into the game against his doctor's orders. At the key position, Queen's may be without Sutton to lead them against the blue, and Monohan, their best line plunger, is the third doubtful member. Whether these three get into the game or not, the fact remains that they have not been able to attend practices regularly and no player can afford to do that in early season.

Even against these handicaps, however, it is an open question whether the blue will be able to defeat the tri-color on their own gridiron. Better teams that the 1928 Varsity outfit have failed to beat the Queen's squad on their own field and since 1922, when Varsity crushed them under a 25-4 score, no invader has ever left Richardson Stadium with the spoils of victory.

Varsity so far this season have failed to impress. Even the Toronto critics have been dubious of their chances, and certainly on paper they do not look like a championship outfit. Just how they will look on the Richardson gridiren is the riddle for the tricolor to solve today.

Today, too, the Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union will start its last season as a three-club organization. It is now practically certain that University of Western Ontario will be taken in next year and eliminate the bye in the schedule that today has McGill playing an exhibition game with Balmy Beach.

The teams are expected to line up for the opener as follows:

Varsity		Queen's
	Fly. Wing

two years ago. Its aims are to promote the writing and reading of English Literature, and to awaken a deeper interest in books and authors of the past and also of the present day. It endeavours to make subjects previously confined to and dealt with in the class-room matter for congenial discussion and debate, and students may give free vent to their personal views on any point that may come up in the delivery of a paper, as one of the most important features of the meetings is the lively discussion that invariably follows the reading of the paper.

As a rule one paper is given at each meeting, but two or even three may be given, if time permits. Literary men visiting Montreal, or resident in Montreal, professors and students including freshmen have in the past submitted papers to the society, so that it becomes evident that though literary ability is naturally appreciated, it is not necessary to be an experienced author or journalist in order to be given an opportunity to compose and read before the society a paper on any subject.

Though nothing definite had yet been decided upon, it is expected that a further announcement in connection with the dates of meetings, and the time at which they are to be held, will shortly be made. Mr. Hayakawa, who received the degree of M.A. last spring at McGill, is considering a proposal made to him by the executive to address the first meeting. The subject of his address is as yet unknown, but all those attending the meeting may be sure of hearing a paper of unusual interest, if one may judge by the previous occasions on which Mr. Hayakawa addressed the Club. Last year the subject of his paper was a survey of the life and work of James Elroy Flecker an author not generally known.

Freshmen and women are especially invited to apply for membership at their earliest convenience, and will be welcome at all the meetings.

R.V.H. to Play Soccer Team

Red and White Squad Strong —Scheduled for 2.15

Royal Victoria provide the opposition to McGill's soccer team on the campus this afternoon. Fresh from their victory over the Athenis, McGill expect a victory but will have to step lively to win out against a team of the R.V.H.'s calibre.

Their line-up given below shows in their ranks many players of local renown who with their wealth of playing experience and good physical condition should give McGill a battle all the way.

To meet this threat McGill will field their strongest team which is substantially the same as that which won yesterday.

The members of the McGill team who have not been physically examined must do so today between 11 and 12—otherwise they cannot play in the afternoon.

The line-ups are as follows:—

R.V.H.	Position	McGill
	Goal
McFarlane		W. Brown
	Full-Backs
Masen		Giovando
Kerwood		Helwig
	Half-Backs

The second star of the meet was W. J. Fraser, the Sophomores track sprinter, who won the 100 and the 220, and to round out the day, took third place in the high jump. Baker, the soph's star hurdler took second to Drew in the 120 yard high hurdles and nosed out his running mate Hutchins to take first place in the 220 yard low hurdles. Other men who attracted the attention of the track enthusiasts who were present were Bourne who ran a very fine race to win the 880 yards run, and Lockhead, who, in the one mile run, created great excitement by passing Barclay, McGill's second-string miler, in the last five yards, to win in 4.57 2-5, which, considering the conditions, was remarkably fast time.

The results of the events, with the first three men, and times or distances of the winners, follows:

120 yards High Hurdles. Drew, Freshman, won. Baker, Soph. second Hutchins, Soph. third. Time 16 1-5.

Equalls Intercollegiate and McGill Records.

Discuss. Church Soph. won, Costello Soph, second, Fleishman, Fresh, third. Distance 94'—11'.

Pole Vault—Merynan, Fresh, won, Wallace, Fresh, second, Caron, Fresh third. Height 10 feet.

880 yards run—Bourne Soph, won. Springings, Soph, second. McKean-Smith, Fresh, third. Time 2.05 3-5.

100 yards dash—Fraser, Soph. won, Cameron, Soph second. Drew, Fresh. third. Time 11 2-5.

One Mile—Lochead, Soph. won, Barclay, Soph second, Macdonnell, Fresh, third. Time 4.57 2-5.

High Jump—Drew, Fresh. won, Horn, Soph. second, Fraser, Soph, third. Height 5 feet 7 inches.

440 Dash—Brown Fresh, won. Hart Fresh, second, McIntyre, Soph. third. Time 56 secs.

Javelin—McBroom, Fresh, won. Dist. 147 feet 1 in.

First Test For Football Team This Afternoon

Balmy Beach Will Furnish Opposition in Exhibition

COUPON NO. 1

Balmy Beach football squad, champions of Canada for 1927 will furnish the first opposition of the season for the new McGill senior twelve at the Percival Molson Memorial stadium this afternoon. The fixture, an exhibition will be a centre of attraction of all football fans, for it should settle to a certain extent the much discussed question of the strength or weakness of the McGill representation in the intercollegiate race.

The gridiron of the Richardson Memorial stadium at Kingston will also be the focal point of thousands of eyes, when Toronto Varsity and Queen's football squads open the intercollegiate season, this afternoon. Both squads were defeated in pre-season exhibitions however, when the players take the field, the Presbyterians will stand heavy favorites. The Blue have always played at their best on the Queen's gridiron. Whether they will uphold tradition today is a decidedly open question.

The McGill squad will enter today's match handicapped by the illness of two men who were practically slated for regular positions. Bill Lovering, an important cog in the McGill backfield, is being kept out of the game through a recurrance of a back injury. Lovering spent most of the day at the field house attempting to get in condition, and although he is fair, he will be kept out to prevent further injury and to keep in good trim for the all-important Varsity game a week from today.

Jack Moar, who returned to McGill early this week, was laid low with a severe cold, and will be out of the game for some days. Moar was favoured to play at flying wing.

The squad was kept indoors yesterday, in order to keep the cold bogey away, and to prevent the men from being too finely trained. A line-up was given out by the coaching staff, although some changes are possible before the start. Altimas will start at snap, while Kritzwiser will take his place along side of Tremain and Doherty. Brown will get the bid at outside wing, along with Don Young. The Church brothers, Chic and Harry will find themselves side by side against the heavy Balmy Beach line.

The Balmy Beach squad arrived last night about 25 strong. The men are reported in the best of condition with the exception of "Red" Foster, who is laid low through illness.

Coupon number 1 will be accepted from students for admission to the game.

The line-up:

Seconds Opens Season Today

Play at Lennoxville; Juniors in Exhibition

All three McGill football teams will be keen in action today, the intermediates entraining this morning for Lennoxville where they open the intercollegiate intermediate schedule against Bishop's college, and the juniors playing an exhibition at Vaudville, against the local twelve.

The opening of the intermediate schedule will also see last year's runners up to the Dominion intermediate champions, Loyola College, up against the University of Montreal representation. Both these squads are highly rated, and some first class football should be played.

The McGill seconds will of course be sadly handicapped in their game against Bishop's on account of several of their best men being used as substitutes with the seniors against Balmy Beach today. Some promising material has been noted on the second team, and after the whole squad has been organized, it is expected to make an excellent showing against such a formidable squad as Loyola.

The juniors are a more or less unknown quantity just now. Their stubborn defence against the seniors in practice games has shown them to be a shifty squad, as well as fairly weighty one. Coach Boyd Millen has had them in hand for a few days, and haw they fare today should indicate how they will go when the regular schedule starts.

Dr. Curly Taylor has been handling the intermediates.

Rather Good

An Englishman was seeing some "collegiate" dancing for the first time. He seemed greatly impressed, and after a lengthy pause inquired of his guide: "I say, my dear chappie, they marry afterwards, don't they?"

"Ticket," commanded the door keeper at the Junior Prom.

"Here," said the fellow with the unattractive girl, "and give me a transfer."

val at Rome Sir Rennell then went to Sweden and Norway.

In 1908 he entered upon his duties as ambassador to Italy where he served till the end of the Great War.

He left Rome at the end of 1919 retaining with him the affections of the Italians.

In literary line, Sir Rennell has written several books of biography, including "Frederick, Emperor and Crown Prince" and "Sir Walter Raleigh". In Art, "Customs and Lore of Ancient Greece" and "Homer's Ithaca" are two of his many contrbiutions. His volume of his memoirs under the title of "Social and Diplomatic Memories" are of great value.

This is Sir Rennell's second visit to Canada. His last trip to this country was less than twenty years ago.

Finds Europe An Education

J. Gordon Nelles Pursues Economic Studies While Taking Vacation

J. Gordon Nelles, last year's Managing Editor of the McGill Daily, and Graduate in Commerce, is evidently enjoying his tour of Europe—if the following cross-section of his experiences is indicative. In a recent letter to Dr. Stephen Leacock, he writes:

Geneva, Sept. 22, 1928.

My dear Dr. Leacock:

This is just a line concerning the progress of my economic enquiries in Europe on the subject of commercial aviation.

In London I got much information both from the Air Ministry and the Imperial Airways. On the continent I went over the chief air ports and gained a sound idea of the general handling of passengers, working arrangements between different companies and their general financial situation. In Berlin the Luft Hansa people assisted me greatly.

I've also gained considerable knowledge on general economic problems by interviewing people in every country I've been in. I saw Sir Josiah Stamp, the British member of the Dawes Commission, in London, and many industrial and labor leaders. In Cologne I went over the big German dye works known as the "Farbenindustries," and at Essen a director of the Krupp firm showed me over their plant. The size of some of these European factories dispels the idea that America is the last word in industry. They also all tell the same story of regaining all their old markets by the superior standard of their products.

At present I'm taking the opportunity to study the League of Nations, as I have a press pass to all its meetings through the Montreal Star. I'm leaving at the end of the week for a tour of Italy with Eugene Forsey, who has a month to spare before his last Oxford term starts. I expect to see a bit of Tunis and Algeria, so as to get a taste of the Mohammedan East, before I return, and as I came to Geneva via Berlin, Prague, Vienna, Budapest and Munich, I'll feel I've done Europe fairly thoroughly.

3. Sing when requested by a sophomore.

4 Learn college yells and songs.

Caps and song books will be given out after accountancy lecture on Monday, a fee of one dollar will be levied for the same. Infringements will be severely punished.

Science

The following rules are to observed by the Science freshmen during the rushing season commencing Monday.

1. Skull caps must be worn.

2. Bow ties as supplied must be worn.

3. Overcoat and suitcoat must be carried on coat-hanger in college grounds.

4. Large red band must be worn about waist in the centre of which must be pinned a card bearing the name of the wearer. Nickname and surname to be used.

5. Pants must be rolled four inches below knees, and on each leg two inches below the pants must worn red and white bows.

6. Song books must be obtained and all college yells and songs must be learned, and sung at the discretion of the sophomores.

7. All college stairs must be ascended backwards.

8. Walk on the road in the college grounds, and enter and leave by the main gates on Sherbrooke Street only.

9. Any infraction of these rules will be dealt with quickly and judiciously by the sophomores.

10. These rules apply to the freshmen in Architecture as well as those in Science.

11. Freshmen will be assessed the sum of one dollar to defray expenses incurred by the rushing. It would be well if they bear this in mind and in pocket.

builded better than they knew, ever undaunted seemingly insurmountable obstacles in their path.

"Nor have our generous citizens of the present day ever failed to come to the assistance of this university when the need arose. Nowhere in the world has there been a more devoted group, a more generous community, and at this anniversary we cherish and remember them,trusting that these benefactors, too, may rest assured that their efforts have not been misspent nor their confidence misplaced.

"Graduates there are from all faculties who have lent prestige to the name of McGill, and have fulfilled the high hopes and ambitions of our founder. The memory of such graduates from the Law School as Sir John Abbott, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Donald Macmaster, the Hon. C. A. Geoffrion; from the faculty of science as George Henry Frost, Dr. Robert Bell, Donald Stewart, H. K. Wicksteed, Louis Herdt; from the faculty of medicine as George W. Campbell, Thomas Roddick, William Osler, Frank Buller, Wyatt Johnson, J Stewart, Robert Craik and Arthur Browne, bear ample testimony to the fact that the opportunities afforded by this university have not been wasted. Those early leaders, passing through our university, have surely left a portion of themselves behind. It is not the ivy alone that clings to the ancient walls, but memories, echoes and inspirations. These, too, twine about our revered institution.

Dr. Martin then directed his remarks to the hardships endured by great men in the past such as Darwin and Lincoln in contrast to the facilities at the disposal of the modern scientist and statesman, and concluded by addressing some words to the Medical Faculty.

Chancellor Beatty then addressed the assembly was as follows:

"I do not suppose there is a man here who would not like to feel that in going through the university, taking from it all that the university could give him in the way of academic training, he had been fortunate to leave with the university something which he himself had contributed. I do not know of any greater satisfaction an undergraduate could possess than the realization on his graduation that he had repaid to the university during his four or five years some of the debt he owed it.

"It has been said often in criticism of college men, and I am afraid I have been guilty of saying it myself, that they do not prepare themselves, and the college does not help prepare them to the extent it should for the discharge of their duties as citizens when they leave the university It is claimed that the whole attention of the college staff and the whole concentration of the student himself is upon the immediate objective of successfully passing examinations and getting a degree and on the ultimate objective of getting into business or a profession, to the exclusion of preparation for the duties which fall upon every young man in this country, once he becomes of age, of equipping himself to discharge his duty to the community. When I say this I do not mean that he should be equipped; that would be impossible, but that he should be prepared to become equipped while he is at the university; that he should know something of his country and its problems; that he should study them and think about them so that when he leaves the university he does not become automatically attached to one or other of the political parties, a partisan without independence of though and without knowledge, but that he should have in the back of his mind that some day, a little later, perhaps, and depending somewhat upon his own qualities, he should take an active and even a public part in the solution of the country's problems and bring to them the trained, analytical mind and the unbiased judgment of an intelligent and well-educated man.

Duty to Public

"By encouraging this spirit of public service, I do not mean to suggest that every student of Arts at McGill should at once conceive the ambition of standing for Parliament. The circumstances of Canadian life do not lend themselves to such wholesale creation of political aspirants, and in any case there would not be enough seats in Parliament to go around. But it would do no harm if every McGill graduate realized that the life and training he had enjoyed within these walls qualified him for more than the mere practice of a profession or business—that they equipped him in a special degree for any public service he might be called upon as a citizen to perform.

the cavalry, next rose to speak on the work of the cavalry. He gave valuable advice to recruits. The dinner held last year by the squadron was pleasantly informal. He hoped the recruits would stay with the corps.

Captain Pennell the adjutant of the corps was the next to speak. He warned the recruits that they were to be trained to command men and not merely to be good soldiers. He urged them to take advantage of the summer courses. An officer must be acquainted with all the arms of the service, and must keep himself from getting rusty. He pointed out that during special courses those taking them received pay according to their ranks.

Captain Coates, commanding the medical sections, made a few remarks on the work of his section. At least forty men could be accommodated in this company.

Major Jeakins then read the reports of the summer work. These reports were favorable. W. Angus Murray was attached to the 17th Duke of York's Royal Canadian Hussars for their summer camp. Lieut. A. W. D. Swan was with the RF.C.D. for a refresher course.

Several others also attended military courses during the holidays. The following took the course at the R.C.A.F. Bradley, Cooper, Supple and Morrison.

Col. Thompson then gave an admirable address. He remarked that the infantry was the backbone of the army. He did not consider the cavalry obsolete. It had been misused by the Germans during the war. Later the British Cavalry proved invaluable for the speed especially in the Eastern campaigns. Cavalry has been found to be the best way to follow up breakthroughs. Cavalry armed with anti-tank guns will prove very effective.

Of the Medicals he said that there was no first aid training given at the university, so that the training received in the corps would prove invaluable to the Medical students. The signals are a highly essential branch. Military actions largely depend on them.

Colonel Thompson pointed out every member of the corps.

Speaking of the Militia as a whole he said that the best way to keep the peace was to be so strong that no one dare attack you. If the Germans had realized that the British Empire would stand together as it did in 1914 there would have been no Great War. The defense of the state must be done by the personal sacrifice of individuals; that duty cannot be paid in any other way. A great Canadian example of this is Dollard des Ormeaux.

Headhunters Will Entertain Explorers

Theodore Beelman is Leading Expedition Into Wilds of Borneo.

Chicago, Oct.—Members of the All-American Mohawk Malaysian Expedition sailing this month for Borneo, land of the headhunters, will feel as compatively safe in the jungle wilds of that mysterious island as on the streets of Chicago, Theodore Seelmann, young Chicago explorer and leader of the expedition, declared here today in address before the Mariner's Club on the eve of his departure for the Malay Archipelago.

"It is true enough that savages of more or less head-hunting prolivities lurk in the dark fastness of Borneo," he said, "but in justice to these unenlightened tribesmen it is only fair that we remember that right here in Chicago, a city of civilized people, malevolent gunmen and bandit-killers make life quite as precarious."

The All-American Mohawk Malaysian Expedition, Seelmann pointed out, is primarily a semi-scientific undertaking which will include in its scope the investigation of tropical and equatorial radio problems. It is sponsored by the All-American Mohawk Corporation, radio manufacturers.

"Although after reaching the interior of Borneo we will be almost entirely dependent upon our special low-wave portable radio apparatus for communication with the civilized world, none of us feel especially alarmed at this time that to be cut off suddenly from the possible aid of white men will necessarily endanger our lives. Scientists, traders and others who have really studied Borneo at first hand are pretty thoroughly convinced that the Dyaks and Malays of that island are on a whole a peaceful people. Tales of cannibalism and head-hunting are not all fabrications, but it is as unjust to the natives of Borneo to believe in the "wild man" myth as it is to suppose that the citizens of Chicago are all vicious law-breakers and killers. This much, however, may be said in defense of Borneoans: They are haunted by age-old superstitions and religious beliefs which occasionally incite them to horrible massacres. But so-called civilized men who deliberately slay their fellow beings in the streets of Chicago to rob and plunder have not even this excuse to fall back on."
